
Declaration on Andean Ecosystems

The 4th National Conference and International Conference on "Paramos" (high plateau grassland ecosystems) and Cloud Andean Forests, which took place in Malaga, Santander, Colombia on November 1999 -including representatives from Colombia, Venezuela and Costa Rica- summarized its viewpoints in a declaration which is available in Spanish in WRM's web site:
http://www.wrm.org.uy/english/tropical_forests/paramos.html

The declaration is a well balanced analysis of the situation being faced by people and the environment, where many -including lower ranking government officials, academics, environmentalists, local peoples- support the conservation of these vulnerable ecosystems, while a few -politicians, higher ranking officials and corporations- only act in their own interest. As a result, a draft bill for the protection of the "paramo" ecosystem "has been sleeping for more than a decade on the desks of the Colombian Ministry of the Environment." The declaration ends with a call for action to protect these ecosystems and their people, including 16 specific demands.
